Dear Mr. Sanders,

8.22.00

It is my understanding that a massive relocation of the southern sea otter is underway. The reason, as always?.. the almighty dollar.

So many years have been spent recovering a healthy sea otter population. Now, because the fishing industry wants to wipe out any competition for (shellfish) we're going to negate these efforts. It seems to me that the industries could create fish farms and have much greater control over their "products", and, at an effective cost.

Please support the care and nurturing of these ancient sea animals. Their place on this earth needs protecting.

Thank you for your consideration,

John F. Wright
